

Metals form a giant lattice structure. The metallic bond is formed between the positive ions in the lattice and the delocalised electrons which come from the metal atoms. Which metal will have the highest boiling point?