

The positive electrode in the electrolysis used to purify copper is made of