

Compounds formed with ionic bonds are solids at room temperature and have very high melting points